COURSE DESCRIPTION

Spiritual First Aid for Moral Injury: Providing Care for Unseen Wounds focuses on how chaplains, first responders, social workers, clergy, frontline healthcare workers, and others can intervene and prevent moral injury. Moral injury has shifted from being thought only to affect Soldiers in combat to being recognized as a significant issue for first responders, police officers, healthcare workers, and ministry leaders. This training is not just about acquiring new skills. It's about transforming the way you interact with patients, clients, and people. It will empower you to provide a higher level of care and understanding, making a significant difference in the lives of those you serve.

OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this program, the participant should be able to:

1. Define spiritual first aid skills to help people intervene and prevent moral injury.
2. Recognize the root causes, symptoms, and treatment options.
3. Improve the use of spiritual and moral injury assessment tools.
4. Learn the emotions associated with moral and spiritual injury and what to do with that knowledge.
5. Know how to help the "healers" and the "responders" heal.
6. Read through case studies and healing techniques that can be used in the field.
7. Associate how trauma affects "healer" and "responders."

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTORS

Dr. Teresa J. Sanderson is a moral injury expert who earned a Doctor of Divinity in Ministry Leadership from South University. She earned a Master of Chaplaincy from Columbia International University, concentrating on hospital chaplaincy. During COVID, she worked as a Chaplain at Prisma Health Richland in Columbia, South Carolina. She served in the main hospital, Heart Hospital, and Children's Hospital, concentrating on intensive care units, heart units, and children with cancer and blood issues. As the spouse of an Army officer who served for thirty-one, Dr. Sanderson worked with chaplains and Soldiers to develop family readiness group programs, resiliency programs, and chaplaincy counseling programs.
